

Summer School of Japanese Language and Culture 2013
in Fukuoka

Center for International Programs
Fukuoka University

Fukuoka Univ. Center for International Programs will program the 2-week intensive summer course with an emphasis on Japanese language learning with culture experience, and is pleased to announce that registration for the 2013's program is now open.

The Summer School is designed for the undergraduate students who have learned Japanese language in the home country and already have the language skills equivalent to N3-N2 level in Japanese-Language Proficiency Test, and all the program activities in the Summer School are conducted in Japanese. The Summer School, therefore, will offer the good opportunity to those who wishes to learn further on the spot to improve language skills in the local circumstances.

Fukuoka Univ. students pitch in with the program activities for assistance, that will be a wonderful opportunity for the participating students to practice and use the language skills in a real setting as well as to make local friends through associating with their Japanese counterparts.

We look forward to having the aspirant students join the summer experience of learning at Fukuoka Univ. campus.
